Dear Parents and Carers,

Stranger Danger in the 21st Century Workshop – keeping our children safe
Tuesday 17th November – 7pm

In 2015 the danger to our children online has never been more profound and has never been more removed from the lessons we learnt growing up. The growth of the internet means that our children are in danger in ways that didn't exist when we were young. In addition, many adults do not understand what those dangers are because we do not understand the world of the internet or the possibilities available to children who have access to the internet through their iPhones, iPods, tablets, computers and gaming consoles such as the Nintendo Wii or the Xbox.

Almost every day, the media reports on yet another case involving dangers presented to children through use of the internet. At Arthur Bugler we are fully committed to ensuring that our children stay safe when using the Internet and that they are fully aware of the possible dangers they could be faced with online. However we also know that we as adults also have a responsibility to ensure we do what we can to keep children safe online.

As part of our e-safety week the school will be holding a Stranger Danger in the 21st Century Workshop for parents and carers on Tuesday 17th November at 7pm. The session will be delivered by two speakers, John Woodley and John Staines. Both Johns are qualified police trainers in this area and one is currently a serving Detective Sergeant working within the Essex Police Online Investigation team. They bring their knowledge and understanding of this area to these sessions and will be able to share with you real-life events where young children have been put at risk. The session will last approximately 2 hours and refreshments will be provided.

We hope to see as many of you as possible at this very important event.
